Children Lack Proper Feeding

Ohioan Claims That Farm Stock Is Better Fed And Cared For

CHICAGO. — Joseph W. Fichter, chairmon of the health committee o the National Grange, told members of the third annual conference on rural health that more attention has been given to the care and feeding of farm animals than to the care and feeding of American children.

Fichter pointed out that a nation concerned with world health and giving through the Marshall Plan, should be willing to invest a relatively small amount in the health of its own children if it expected a strong national stock of citizens.

He urged appropriations for state departments of health, for adequate health and sanitation supervisors in schools.

Advocates School Lunches.

Other recommendations by Fichter were well-balanced school lunches; lunch periods long enough to permit relaxation and not followed by periods of strenuous exercise; less emphasis on highly competitive inte-school athletic contests and special attention to children's mental health.

He stated that much mental illness was caused by worry and frustration because schools didn't offer children opportunities to pursue studies in which they were interested. Fichter asked that means by found to train more doctors to serve rural populations and expressed the opinion that more young people from rural areas would be permitted into medical schools. Rural youths would be more likely to become country doctors than city youths, he contended.

Lists Deficiencies.

Mrs. J. Laning Taylor, director of the educational department of National Co-operative Milk Producers federation, armed with statistics, said that 100 million dollars was urgently needed for expansion of the national school lunch program.

To prove her contention that most American children were malnourished, Mrs. Taylor quoted:

1. "A 12-year continuous study of 10,000 Pennsylvania school children showed that 85 percent of them exhibit reasonably good nutrition in one of more respects.

2. "In Minnesota seven-day diet survey of 1,080 pupils in rural, town, suburban and city schools showed that 40.2 percent had poor diets, 32.8 percent fair diets and only 27.6 percent had good diets.

Poor Diets Predominate.

3. "A survey of 500 school children in West Virginia showed 54 percent were getting poor or bad diets.

4. "In a study of Texas school children, about 20 percent of these examined were anemic enough to need medical treatment because of iron deficiency.

5. "A dietary survey of more than 1,100 Marylang schoolchildren revealed that only 8 percent had adequate diet."

Mrs. Taylor terminated her talk with a parting shot at congress for appropriating only 65 million dollars for the national school lunch program.

Way To Save On Feed Costs Described

"Grass is an save grain." This brief but very true statement came from John T. Hunter, chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Conservation Committee in commenting on high feed cost in the production of livestock. "Labor and other fixed costs are not likely to show much reduction in 1948," Mr. Hunter continued, "but farmers can do much toward meeting high production costs with better pastures. By fertilizing pastures this spring farmers can provide earlier grazing and more grass for their livestock as well as conserve and build up their soil."

Citing the results of experiments and farm experience, the chairman pointed out that grasses and legumes in pastures require plant foods just the same as other crops. The plant foods that are usually needed are lime, phosphate and potash. Sometimes rarer plant foods such as boron, cobalt, manganese, or zinc are needed. When needed plant foods are applied, growth may be speeded up and animals turned on pasture as much as two weeks earlier in the spring.

Sometimes, Mr. Hunter explained, the fertilized pastures can be further hurried along in spring with nitrate. In such cases, farmers often put a nitrate on a small part of the pasture. This partially stimulates those grasses which start growing early. Later, as the weather and soil warm up, the legumes take up the job of gathering nitrogen from the air and the application of nitrate is unnecessary.

Woman Tired of "Dog's Life" Steals $5,000 From Relative

BEULAH, MICH.—A Pittsburgh housewife who dreamed of escaping her husband's dog-filled house and setting up an independent dressing business was held by police in a $5,000 theft from a relative's house.

Arrested while lugging two suitcases loaded with the cash and 10 bottles of whisky, Mrs. J. M. McGuire was reported by Sheriff Ray Bryan as saying she had traveled 600 miles to burglarize the summer home of W. F. Crawford, her husband's uncle, at nearby Platte lake.

At Pittsburgh McGuire described Mrs. McGuire as the victim of a "Jekyll and Hyde" complex which he said "liquor uncovers."

The blonde, plump woman was charged with breaking into the cottage.

Crawford, at his winter home at Daytona Beach, Fla., told authorities Mrs McGuire had "overlooked quite a bit" in ransacking the house, and the sheriff later reported that some $35,000 in securities had been left undisturbed in tin cans in the basement. Crawford said he would not press charges.

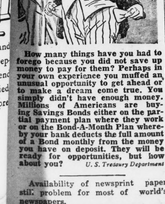
The sheriff said Mrs. McGuire told him she was tired of having 45 dogs eat off tables and sleep in beds in her Pennsylvania home. She said she took the money to set up her business, Bryan added.

McGuire explained that he kept dogs in his cellar while taking them to his three acres of kennels on a suburban farm, but insisted there never were more than 10 in the house at one time.

He said he could not understand his wife's alleged theft of $5,000.

"She has more money than that in her bank accounts," reported McGuire, a well to do limestone jobber. "She certainly doesn't need the money."

Uncle Sam Says



How many things have you had to forego because you did not save up money to pay for them? Perhaps in your own experience you muffed an unusual opportunity to get ahead or to make a dream come true. You simply didn't have enough money. Millions of Americans are buying Savings Bonds either on the partial payment plan where they work or on the Bond-a-Month Plan whereby your bank deducts the full amount of a Bond monthly from the money you have on deposit. They will be ready for opportunities, but how about you?

Girl Suffocates as Ground Gives Way Over Old Well

RIVERSIDE, N. J.—Dorothy Kenney, 11, was romping playfully on a lawn adjoining her home when the ground gave way beneath her and she rank to her death in an old well.

Officers said the ground caved in without warning and Dorothy found herself stuck in a substance resembling quicksand.

She struggled and screamed for help but disappeared quickly before the eyes of her brother, Joseph, 5, and another playmate. Dirt, ice and slush piled on top of the child.

Nursing and Teaching Jobs Are Plentiful for Women

NEW YORK.—According to a new survey by the New York state department of labor, the best opportunities for women today are in the "shortage" fields of nursing and teaching.

Smaller, non-manufacturing industries absorb the rest of the working women.

High School Chatter . . .

Hi, folks!

Well, I guess you've heard about the mock trial the Seniors had last Friday. It was very interesting and we noticed that a number of the students were wondering whether Roger really was guilty of murder. Even Patsy looked worrie t.

Have you seen the beautiful new paintings in the library? Well, if you haven't, then now would be a good time to come and visit the school and see them. They are from the University of Virginia Extension Division and are de Medici prints of outstanding early European painters. Open house will be held Thursday and Friday nights, from 8:00 to 9:00. Anyone interested in seeing the exhibit is invited to attend.

Our baseball team played Altavista last Friday. Altavista won, 3 to 1. Better luck next time, boys.

One of our friends, June Smith, has moved to Richlands. We hate to see her go and we won't forget this sweet girl.

Looks as if we are going to have a new basketball court, and have the old tennis court and basketball court fixed over. We hope so anyway.

Have you heard that we have a new agriculture office; that one of the Senior girls had a radio audition; that one of the eighth grade girls is wearing a diamond; that the radio in Miss Holley's room is actually working; that the Seniors have at last selected their play; who the rejected lover is; and who Jean Moore was with the other night; and what happened to Obra's picture.
